"Do you know his son?" softly inuired Co'onel Clarkson.

"Glad to hear it, senator, I'll appoint him postmaster. How'll he do?" at the promptness with which his commendation of the young man had been accepted as an efficial indorsement; and the single exception of the secretary, has vet the office had been kept in the fam ily of the very candidate against whom he had just protested. Here was a pretty state of things, and the senator airly gasped for breath. "You make appointments this sud "We do."

"Well that bests me," and overcome with the exasperating novelty of the sit uation, the senator stalked out. Mr. Crisp, of Georgia, is one of most affable members of congress, but like his democratic colleagues, he al ways feels that the appointment of olored republican to an office is an out rage. When a colored school teacher named Dudley was mentioned for pos master at Americus, Mr. Crisp's home the congressman from the Third Georgia district felt called upon to protest There were several candidates, but Dudley seemed to lead them all in character and number of his endorsements, and the department had about decided to appoint him. Dudley was a colored man, but he possessed education and character, and among the numerous highly commendatory indorsements was a letter dated early in 1889 and signed by the members of the democratic loca committee. They knew Dudley in person, and evidently took pleasure in testi tying to his mental and moral worth. When Mr. Crisp called, his first int mation was to the effect that the pro posed postmaster was not only illiterate but that he was irresponsible and un trustworthy. Mr. Crisp then produced etter from the democratic local committee calling Dudley a dirty, ignorant loafer and various other unpleasan things, and protesting vehemently against his appointment. Mr. Clarkson listened to the letter, and then, reaching in his desk, brought out the letter of a year

"Here's a letter written by the same democrats a year ago," he said, "and hey pay this same Dudley the highest possible compliments. Now, which an I to believe, and how am I to know that their first love and clamor for Dudley's dress Registered Letters Containing Currency in appointment as vehemently as they non protest against it?"

The democratic local committee, met phorically, had "stepped on itself," and Mr. Crisp could suggest oo remedy. He went out in a thoughtful mood, and Mr.

Dudley was appointed.

A democratic paper settles the tarif uestion once for all by advising "the Kansas farmer, if he wants to know what is hurting him, to haul 100 bushels of retected corn to the nearest protected market and try to trade it for a protected Sunday suit of woolen clothing."-The average democratic paper does not seem to have yet discovered that a suit of protected clothing can be purchased as cheap in the United States as it can in Europe. Several murders are reported to ha been committed recently by Indians along the Colorado river, in Lower California, among the Cocopah Indians The old chief, Colorow, died three weeks since, and the new chief believing the medicine man guilty of witchcraft caused his murder. Thereupon his relatives killed two of the slayers, and now the chief with the balance of the tribe assert that they will kill all the medi cine's male relatives, including his two sons.
